THE PROBLEM

Mike Bloomberg's foundation Bloomberg Philanthropies works to ensure better, longer lives for the greatest number of people by focusing on a few key areas: the arts, education, the environment, government innovation, and public health. In each field of work, Bloomberg Philanthropies partners with the most effective organizations from around the world to help achieve successful outcomes. The following is a select handful of those organizations. Find more partners and learn more about Bloomberg Philanthropies' work at Bloomberg.org.

THE CURATOR

Mike Bloomberg has a distinct, data-driven approach to philanthropy that comes from his rare experience of running both a major city government (as three-term mayor of New York City from 2002-2013) and a major global company, Bloomberg LP, which he started in 1981. His foundation, Bloomberg Philanthropies, focuses on public health, education, the environment, government innovation, and the arts. In 2014, Bloomberg was appointed to be the UN Secretary-General's Special Envoy for Cities and Climate Change, and in 2016, he was appointed WHO Global Ambassador for Noncommunicable Diseases. Bloomberg is co-author, with Carl Pope, of Climate of Hope.
